BAR AND GRILL

Ready to embark on a journey of discovery?

Welcome to our wine list, where we celebrate the diverse winemaking talents and varietals of the Canberra Wine District, alongside treasures from across Australia and around the world.

Within, find our favourites organized by grape variety, geography, and generation. First, take inspiration from flavour notes that describe each grape. Each bottle is organized according to distance from the very spot you're sitting in, to really get a feel for where your wine was born. Naturally, our Canberra champions are on top. We've given some notes on how each growing region might express itself, but there are always exceptions to the rule. Then, take a look at vintage – youthful or from yesteryear, it's your choice.

Feeling conflicted? It's a judgment-free zone where your palate reigns supreme. Share your feelings with us, and we'll steer you towards a wine that resonates with your current state. No complex terminology, just pure enjoyment.

So, what will it be tonight?

THE CANBERRA WINE DISTRICT

Canberra is a budding wine region with first plantings around 1840, and founding producers including Clonakilla, Helm, and Lark Hill dating back to the 1970s. One of Australia's coolest wine regions, the Canberra District blends the traditional and emerging in a riot of contemporary wines and wine styles that are delicious and built for food.

CHAMPAGNE GLOSSARY

- NV – Non-Vintage. This refers to wine whose grapes are not necessarily harvested in the same year. Winemakers may combine juices from different vintages to help achieve their signature style.
- Blanc de Blancs – French for "white from white", meaning that the wine is made only from white grapes like Chardonnay.
- Tradition – A term sometimes used to refer to the "traditional" method used for all Champagne.
- Brut, Extra Brut – The level of sweetness from residual sugar found in the wine. In our list, "Extra Brut" are the driest, and "Brut" tend to be slightly sweeter, though both are still on the dry end of the scale.
- Premier Cru – An indication of high fruit quality, including concentration and balance of flavours.
- AOC - Appellation d'Origine Contrôlée. Only wines made within the defined borders of the AOC can be labelled Champagne. AOCs have rules on grape varieties and winemaking practices to ensure quality.

RIESLING

Riesling is characterized by fresh fruit flavours and mouth-watering high acidity. Lime, lemon, and apple take centre stage.

AUSTRALIA

Known for being vibrant and bone-dry, with zesty citrus, and mineral characters that grow with age.

FRANCE

Usually richer and slightly fuller-bodied than Australian expressions, French Riesling leans toward stone fruit.

2017 Domaine Barmès-Buecher Grand Cru Steingrubler	ALSACE AOC FR	117

GERMANY

In Riesling's ancestral home the best are meticulously classified using the Prädikat system.
Complex flavours of apple, lime, and pear can give way to petroleum and honey with age.

RIESLING GLOSSARY

- Trocken – Dry. Despite Germany's reputation for ripe grapes leading to off-dry and sweet wine, many are fermented to dryness.
- Prädikat – The German scale of fruit ripeness at time of harvest, ranging from Kabinett (least ripe, usually dry) to Trockenbeerenauslese (overripe, very sweet).

PINOT GRIS & GRIGIO

Two names, one grape. Gris is the fuller-bodied, textured French expression, full of ripe pear and peach. Grigio is the light, crisp, Italian style leaning into citrus and white florals.

AUSTRALIA & NEW ZEALAND

Aussies have the best of both worlds. Producers name their wines after the style they feel they've best aligned to.

SEMILLON

Born from France where it is commonly blended with Sauvignon Blanc, or used to make sweet, dessert-style wines like Sauternes, Semillon has boomed as a single-varietal wine in Australia. When young, it bursts with fruit, but bottle-aging can bring out beeswax, honey, and nuts.

CHARDONNAY GLOSSARY

- Malolactic Fermentation – Bacteria converts tart malic acid into lactic acid, often found in dairy. Common in most red wines, but used selectively for white wines to impart desirable flavours, enhance mouthfeel, and extend flavour persistence.
- Oak – The use of oak (such as barrels, chips, or staves) to impart flavours whilst maturing wine. This is a complex and refined art, with variables including level of toast, size of barrel, and even the source of the oak. American oak leans toward coconut and vanilla notes, whilst French is associated more with spice.

CHARDONNAY

Totally versatile, Chardonnay is grown far and wide with an amazing tendency to reflect terroir.
Through warm and cool climates, oak barrels, steel tanks, and malolactic fermentation for that buttery quality,
Chardonnay is impossible to generalize.

SKIN-CONTACT AMBER

Orange wine takes a technique usually reserved for reds, and applies it to whites. White grapes keep contact with their skins and seeds during the fermentation period, leading to a heavier body, grippier mouthfeel, and some tannic bitterness. Expect tart, robust wines with notes of dried fruit and nuts.

GRENACHE

Ideally grown in warm, dry climates, Grenache ripens well. This translates to higher sugar, and therefore higher alcohol. Its thin skin limits the body and tannin, leading typically to a medium bodied wine radiating candied red fruits and spice.

AUSTRALIA

Home to the world's oldest currently producing vines, Australia's take on Grenache is earthy and full of raspberry.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA'S OLD VINES

South Australia is home to some of the world's oldest vines. In the late 1800s, Phylloxera (a microscopic parasite) was accidentally transported to Europe from America. Unaccustomed to Phylloxera, swathes of European vines were wiped out until the late 1890s when producers began to graft their European vines onto resistant American rootstock.

Luckily, Australia was largely unaffected. Some of Australia's ancient vines that were first transplanted in the 1840s have survived to this day. The Barossa Old Vine Charter and McLaren Vale Old Vine Register provide classification for vine ages that can be found in our South Australian selections.

Barossa Old Vine Charter:

- Old Vine: 35+ years
- Survivor Vine: 70+ years
- Centenarian Vine: 100+ years
- Ancestor Vine: 125+ years

TEMPRANILLO

The most popular Spanish grape for good reason. Warm climate and early ripening bode well for medium to full body reds, often aged in oak. Tempranillo is fairly neutral by itself, and lower in sugar and acidity. Blending allows the solid foundation of Tempranillo to take on characteristics and flavours from others.

AUSTRALIA

Just a couple of local examples. Cool Canberra grants higher acid than usual, but maintains fresh cherry and spice.

TEMPRANILLO GLOSSARY

- Bodega – Spanish for "Winery". Similar to French "Chateau" in Bordeaux, or "Domaine" in Burgundy and the Loire.
- Joven – "Young". Bottled shortly after fermentation, with little to no aging time beforehand. Fresh and fruit forward.
- Crianza - Aged for at least 24 months, with at least 6 of those being in oak. Featuring secondary flavour characteristics of vanilla and coconut from barrel aging.
- Reserva – Three years of aging, at least 1 year in cask. More pronounced aged features of clove, leather and spice.
- Tinto – Spanish term for red wine, meaning dyed, stained, or tinted by the skins of the grapes.
- Tinta de Toro, Tinto Fino, Tinta del Pais – Local, traditional names for Tempranillo.

SHIRAZ & SYRAH

Grown in medium to warm climates, Shiraz is a dark skinned grape with high acidity and strong tannins, making it an excellent candidate for bottle aging. Originally known as Syrah in France, Shiraz is an anglicization that is more commonly used in Australia.

AUSTRALIA

Shiraz and Syrah are typically used by winemakers to indicate their stylistic choices, with Shiraz representing fruit-driven, riper wines, and Syrah more closely resembling elegant and restrained Northern Rhone examples.

CABERNET SAUVIGNON

Cabernet has a thick skin, in more ways than one. Grown in almost every major wine-producing country, Cabernet is at its best in warmer climates to bring out its full force of black fruit, whilst cooler regions can show green bell pepper as a result of a slight under-ripening. Mint, eucalyptus, and dark chocolate are also commonly shown.

AUSTRALIA

Australia makes up 18% of the world's Cabernet plantings. South Australia in particular is famed for rich and concentrated wines.
